

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

When Was the Use of "@#$$%" Justified?

An Historic Perspective

Until recently, there were only twelve instances in the history of mankind where utterance of the "F" word was considered justified and appropriate.

They were also known as
"The Dirty Dozen"

Here they are, presented in chronological order . . .

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

12. "What do you @#$%ing mean it was just a silly little apple!"

-- Adam, In the beginning . . .

11. "Scattered @#$%ing showers, my ass!"

-- Noah, 4314 BC

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

10. "How should I have @#$%ing known he could do something other than carpentry?"

-- Pontius Pilate, 33 AD

9. "You want WHAT on the @#$%ing ceiling?"

-- Michelangelo, 1566

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

8. "Where did all these @#$%ing Indians come from?"

-- General George A. Custer, 1877

7. "What the @#$% do you mean,
we're sinking?"

-- Capt. Edward J. Smith of RMS
Titanic, 1912

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

6. "Where did all the @#$$%ing buyers go to?!"

-- Richard Whitney, NYSE Floor Broker, 1929

5. "Where am I, and what the @#$$% happened to all my fuel?"

-- Amelia Earhart, 1937

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

4. "What the @#$% was that?"

-- Mayor of Hiroshima, 1945

3. "I need this parade like a
@#$%ing hole in the head!"

-- JFK, 1963

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

2. "Aw c'mon. Who the @#$% is going to find out?"

-- Bill Clinton, 1997

1. "Geez, I didn't think they'd get this @#$%ing mad!"

-- Saddam Hussein, 2003

Exhibit XVII

Historical Events Justifying Use of Expletives

. . . and, NOW COMES a thirteenth event, whereby Paragon Commercial Bank, together with Poyner & Spruill, colluded on FRAUDULENT mortgage loan defaults, and then aggressively pursued bogus foreclosures, while preventing the ability to defend against the baseless claims on loans with exemplary credit histories . . .

IN RESPONSE:

"How could you do something so deceitful and malicious, and cause unimaginable suffering and damages to me, my family and others? What the @#$% is wrong with you !?!"

-- Spencer Young, 2009